A Prison Breaker.

An escape took piec : recently from the Eveche prison. Geneva, some of the incidents of which are worth relating. The prison breaker is a man of the name of Poogre, who sometime ago was condemned to "perpetual seclusion" for setting a house on fire in the Rue de Pequis. His conduct in confinement was so ex-mplary that he seems to have succeeded in gaining the lmost unlimited confidence of the prison au thorities. So highly was he favored, indeed, that they fitted up the cell next to that which he occupied as a joiner's shop, and set him to work, joining being Pongre's trade. He was, neveribeless supposed to be well looked after. but little by little he succeeded in making a ladder, so contrived that it could be hidden away in little pieces and put away at a moment's wherewith he cut through a few of the bars of his dungeon. A high wall runs round the jail, the top of which, as luck would have it, was just on a level with Pongre's cell. The hour he chess for making his escape was high noon. In this he showed true wisdom and a profound knowledge of Genevan character, for at Geneva, dining, or any rate eating, at twelve o'clock is regarded as s duty with which nothing is allowed to interfere. Shortly before this hour the warders take the prisoners their rations, and while the latter consume their solitary meal, they dine comfortably and socially in their own apartnotice. He next managed to secrete a saw.

Pongre, of course, was well aware of this and at the last stroke of noon he tore out the bars which he had filed beforehand, and putting together his telescope ladder, bridged with it the charm that separa'ed his dungeon from the wall, which he speedily gained. Then, drag-ging the ladder after him, he used it to reach the roof of an adjoining house, and slipping down a spont he found himself in the street of the Bising San. His next move was to make off to the house of a friend, who supplied him with a suit of clothes. After this be got out of Geneva as quietly as he could. Meanwhile, the jailer whose business it was to remove the digner uteosils from the cells, when he entered that of Pongre, discovered to his dismay that the man had gone. Ecergetic efforts were forthwith made to recipture the lunaway. Gendarmes were sent to scour the c untry, telegrams were dispatched in all directions, and the police of the neighboring cantons warned to keep a sharp lookout for the fugitive. These efforts were successful. A ew days afterwards he was captured at Morges.

THE COOLEST THIEF ON RECORD .- This morning Charles Jones, alias John Williams, was arrested on the charge of stealing chickens. His capture was a clear case of a thief being caught in his own trap. It seems that Williams last night entered the hen house of Mr. G. W. Batkins and stole all the chickens. He did not know whom he was robbing, and this morning went to Mr. Batkin's store and offered the chickens for sale. Mr. Batkins was not in, but his clerk seeing the lot of chickens was a fine one and the price low, bought them from Williams, but he did not have quite enough money and told Williams to come back in half an hour. The negro took the money and left the chickons. Soon after this Mr. Batkins came in and the c'erk showed him the nice lat of chickens he had bought for him. "Why, those are my owo chickens," said the astonished merchant; 'go home and see if my hen house was not robbed last night." The clerk did so, and earned of the clean sweep that had been made. Proprietor and clerk then chuckled over the joke and waited for Williams, wno soon returned for his balance. They nabbed him. -Richmond State. DON'T BE TOO SENSITIVE. -There are many people always looking out for slights. They cannot carry on the daily intercourse of the family without finding that some offense is designed. They are as touchy as hair triggers. If they met an acquaintance who happens to be pre occupied with business, they attribute his abstraction in some matter personal to them selves and take unbrage accordingly. They lay on others the truit of their utter irritability. Indigestion makes them see impertinence in every one they come in contact with. Innocen: persons, who never dream of giving offense, are astonished to find some untortunate word, or momentary tacituralty, mistaken for an insuit.

To say the least, the habit is unfortunate. It is far wiver to take the more charitable view of our ellow beings, and not suppose that a slight is intended unless the nelect is open and direct.
After all, too, life has its hues in a great degree from the color of our own minds are frank and generous, the world treats us kind-ly; if, on the contrary, we are suspic ous, men learn to be cold and cautious towards us Lat a person get the repulation of being "touchy. and everybody is under restraint, and in this way the chances of an imaginary offense are in-
